Went to visit a psychic today - it was weird, she told me I could not marry my fiancé and that I had to find out the truth about my past. Am about to phone mum to ask her about it.

Journal entry: Wednesday 7th May

So...it's taken me a couple of days to get my head together enough to actually put this into words. I still can't believe it. I was adopted. My real last name is not Sutteridge. Mum (she'll always be mum to me) said she was dreading this day.

What the HELL!! She says my name was changed but the adoption people wouldn't tell her what from - I came to them as a new-born.

Harris has been great, he said he'll help me find out who my parents really are. He truly is my soul-mate, no matter what that silly psychic says.

I found my birth certificate...

Does it say who your parents are?
Are you ok - text me as soon as you know
I love you xxx

We need to talk - now, can you come over?

I'll come right away - do you need wine?

Journal entry: Tuesday 23rd June

I haven't been to work for a week. Harris has stopped calling and mum keeps leaving frantic messages.

I should not have looked into my past...

Funny...no, NOT really funny because I guess I Harris and I have a stronger bond than most couples, which I put down to luck - not biology.

He never knew his dad and his mum never talks about him.

Journal entry: Thursday 15th May

I can't believe it - Harris and I have the same last name. A worrying thought comes to me and I am hoping that I can prove myself wrong.

Journal entry: Saturday 27th June

I finally sent a message to Harris. It was smudged with tears, but he has to know the truth.

His father killed my mother and sisters. She was his second wife, after Harris' mother. No wonder she won't talk about him.
